What Bomb Blast Did to Home of Oscar Lawler, Former U. S. Prosecutor

This is how the Los Angeles home of Oscar Lawler, former United States Attorney General and prosecutor in bomb cases, looked after the explosion of a bomb placed between cans of gasoline. The bomb exploded at 3 a. m., on August 4, instantly enveloping the house in flames. Lawler and his wife were sleeping on the porch shown in the smaller picture, immediately above the spot where the bomb was placed. The attorney received terrible burns over four-fifths of his body. Mrs. Lawler also was badly burned. Her shoulderblade was broken when she fainter and her husband, to save her life, dropped from a second-story window. Their son Oscar, aged 5, and his nurse barely escaped the flames.

A city employee who had become an enemy of Lawler through a will case was charged with the crime. The man jumped out of a window and killed himself when questioned regarding the bombing. Lawler's picture is below.
